Warshaw Burstein, LLP Announces WB Perspectives Podcast Series

New York – May 30, 2018 – The New York law firm Warshaw Burstein, LLP announced today it has introduced the WB Perspectives Podcast Series to provide businesses and individuals with insights into the issues shaping their work, life and community.

“We discovered that a majority of our clients were hungry for ways to better understand legal and business trends,” explains Warshaw Burstein Managing Partner Fred Cummings Jr. “Podcasts by the attorneys here on bite-sized topics seemed like the best way to reach our clients.”

With a legal practice deeply entrenched in many of the region’s industry sectors including real estate, manufacturing and financial services and reaching those areas that touch the personal lives of its residents such as matrimonial law, estates and trust and immigration, Warshaw Burstein is well-poised to create highly relevant and timely content. The firm also has several niche practices not generally found in New York including Title IX and College Discipline, Hospitality and Construction.

WB Perspectives can be found on the firm’s website and also on SoundCloud and iTunes.
