

Warshaw Burstein Welcomes Ian Shane as Partner in Tax Practice

New York—July 27, 2020

Warshaw Burstein, LLP, a full-service law firm in New York City, today announced that Ian Shane has joined the firm as partner and will join the Tax practice group, expanding on the firm’s capabilities in international and cross-border transactions.

Mr. Shane joins the firm from Michelman & Robinson LLP.

“Mr. Shane’s expertise in domestic and international corporate tax planning and structuring will build on our already robust tax practice,” Frederick R. Cummings, Jr., Managing Partner of Warshaw Burstein, said. “He also will expand our strengths and capabilities in cross-border financing and a variety of other international transactions.”

“We are fortunate to be in a position to continue to build our firm, and to add new capabilities and senior leadership even amid challenging circumstances,” Mr. Cummings continued. “I welcome Ian to Warshaw Burstein.”

Mr. Shane focuses his practice on U.S. corporate tax planning and transaction structuring. He is highly skilled in a variety of domestic and cross border transactions, including inbound and outbound mergers and acquisitions, tax structuring, corporate restructuring, and general problem solving.

He also provides tax advice to partnerships and LLC’s on domestic tax issues and counsels U.S. companies on international tax planning issues arising from investing overseas, particularly in Europe and Asia. He has advised on choice of entity, check-the-box regulations, as well as cross border financings, transfer pricing, and inbound and outbound asset and stock transfers.

In addition to advising U.S. companies, Ian has represented foreign companies investing in the U.S., providing advice on cash flows in and out of the U.S. and structuring arrangements that take into account foreign and domestic tax rules to minimize U.S. and foreign tax liability.

Mr. Shane has published a series of articles on tax and business subjects for various publications, including British Airways' Business Life Magazine.

Mr. Shane earned his BA Honors Law, University of Westminster, London, and an LLM in Federal Taxation from New York University.
