

June 27, 2016

Kimberly C. Lau's Title IX Practice Featured in *The Wall Street Journal

On June 23, 2016, our Partner and Chair of Warshaw Burstein's Title IX Practice, Kimberly C. Lau, was showcased in an interview with Mary Kissel on a segment of The Wall Street Journal's online feature, "Opinion Journal."

The feature highlights the due process deficiencies in college disciplinary matters, noting Kimberly's role and expertise in Title IX. In the interview Kimberly discusses the campus adjudication process and the potential lifelong implications stemming from what she refers to as a "shadow justice system."

Please click here to see the interview.

*****

Warshaw Burstein's Title IX and College Disciplinary Matters Practice advises on all facets of Title IX compliance and provides representation in litigation and college disciplinary matters. If you have questions about Title IX or the college disciplinary process, please contact Kimberly C. Lau or your regular Warshaw Burstein attorney.

© Warshaw Burstein, LLP, 2016. All rights reserved. This memorandum was prepared as a service to clients and other friends of Warshaw Burstein to report recent developments that may be of interest to them. The content is general and for informational purposes only, and should not be considered or relied on as legal advice. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome. Throughout this memorandum, "Warshaw Burstein" and the "firm" refer to Warshaw Burstein, LLP.

Warshaw Burstein represents clients in the New York metropolitan area, across the United States and around the world.